THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Third Quarter. Lesson XI. Daniel 1, 8:20. September 9, 1917.

Golden Text: Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's dainties, nor with the wine which he drank. Daniel 1:8.

THE BENEFITS OF TOTAL AB-STINENCE.

(Temperance Lesson.)

The antiquity, magnitude, splendor, and wealth of Babylon surpassed before. Founded two millenniums before the Christian era, it covered the entire area of the largest city of modern times. The fascinating loveliness of the metropolis diverted Aldelavan's attention from the incalculable treasures of the royal coffers.

Through its ruins have been the quarry of which a score of cities have been built, they still rise in vast mounds upon the plain.

When Babylon was shining in glorious splendor, the thing eclipsed it in the eyes of God and angel, if not the man, and that, too, the most likely thing the city contained—the character of a young Hebrew prisoner. Daniel was greater than the city in which he lived. The city is dead. The man lives. The character of Daniel has been the noble model on which tens of thousands of young men have fashioned their lives.

He made the most out of his environment. He might have complained of his surroundings. He might have said, "I'm the puppet of a despotic ruler; I might as well submit to the inevitable. I'm deprived of personality and influence. It makes no difference how I live or what I do."

Instead of that, with courteous and winning manner, but without sacrifice of principle, he adjusted himself to his surroundings without giving offense, and achieved success through the very conditions which seemed to make it impossible.

He had fixed religious principles.
He knew what he believed, and why. He was rooted and grounded. Religion was not a matter of geographical location with him. He felt his sacred obligations as strongly in Babylon as he ever did in Jerusalem. No doubt he had a proverb in his day which corresponded to our modern maxim, "When in Rome, do as Romans do."

But he scorned the adage.
He was incorruptible. Babylon is the New Testament type of profanity.
In the midst of a self-indulgent and effeminate court and populace, among strangers, five hundred miles from the restraints of home and Church, undermining influence of general degeneracy, beset by the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eye, and the pride of life, Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself.

Jesus' words are strictly exemplified. "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." ness, and all else shall be added." Daniel stepped at once to the commanding position of prime minister of the proud monarchy on earth and retained it half a century. He was able to befriend with patriotic services his unfortunate fellow-countrymen in their exile. He exalted the name and nature and worship of the true God in a heathen court and country. He left at once an inspiration and a pattern for young men of every age.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Temptations of young men today are not so severe as those of Daniel.
No possible environment could be worse than his. Consequent encouragement of his example.

Total abstinence as a principle is physiologically as well as morally correct. Temperance includes (1) Moderation in eating.
Lewish stomachs make leaders in excess. (2) Abstinence from narcotics. (3) Any apparent excess achieved by those who are not abstemious, is achieved in spite of, not because of, the habits.

The spirit of man for the present, at least, necessarily roots itself in the material. There is supreme danger that the material basis of life shall be unduly prized—that it shall overshadow the spirit. This is a direct reversal of the Divine order.
The spirit is to be in the saddle. It is to dominate. Everything is to be subordinate to it. This is the essence of temperance.

The aims of moderation are beauty, strength, health, mental power, increase of passion and long life. The story of Daniel admirably illustrates this.

Intention is the cornerstone of character. Daniel intended not to defile himself. His entire environment afforded test for the strength of his intention.

The late John country-boy in the lone desert of the city street, at twenty with nothing in his pocket but some poems in manuscript, was a modern Daniel in Babylon. He parted company at once with his first acquaintance who offered to show him the ways of New York, saying sententiously, "I had aspirations for which his atmosphere was not the breath of life." His ambition proved stronger than his white flower safeguarding him against the strong lure of the metropolis. Although "never ascetic," he has expressed some fine temperance sentiments, all the more effective from the fact that they are not professional. As for example when he says "Stimulants used to facilitate compulsion are like stones thrown into a fountain to create an overflow. They forestall the supply and choke the source," and again, "How much less enjoyment runs in the river of excess than overabundant divine abstemious-ness." "Vagabonds" is such a vivid picture of the pains and penalties of intemperance that a lady once affirmed, much to the author's amusement, that no one but a drunkard could have written it. The poet's temperance in everything accounts for his extreme longevity with unimpaired and physical powers. Summing it all up he says "That something of the freshness of dawn is preserved to me in the evening of my days. I owe primarily to a sound constitution, an instinctive obedience to the laws of health and above all to a mind open to the beauty and wonder of the existence in which we are embodied."

ARE YOU A "YES-BUT?"
(A Lesson on Excuses)

A quaint preacher once exclaimed "The Devil's mountains are all mountains of smoke!" They tower high and are forbidding. They are apparently insurmountable and impenetrable. The broad to circumvent they appear impassable barriers. The timorous heart fears to essay them.
But he who, at call of God, marches straight forward finds them nothing but a vapor through which he can pass without effort. The experience of Israel is repeated in every age in the life of individuals and of nations.
Before Zerrubabel thou shalt become a people! If any specific act of obedience to God is resolved into its component parts, the analysis will show first: Faith: "God is." "God asks me to do this: It is something that should be done else he would not require it." Again: I can do it because God who knows me asks me to do it.
Second: "I'll do it because I love him." Love is the measure of obedience. Small love—small obedience!

USE VEILS FOR SANDBAGS.

(By Associated Press.)
Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 7.—Women's veils and the tapestries of private homes are to be utilized in the Holy Land for the manufacture of sandbags for the Turkish trenches, according to the Constantinople correspondent of the Geneva Tribune.

The Turkish authorities in Palestine and Syria have informed the local office of Beyruth and other towns, the correspondent says, that 1,500,000 sandbags are required in the trenches at once for defensive purposes. Inasmuch as sacks and tapestries in dwellings are being com-mandered, and soldiers in Syria have been told by their superiors they may remove the veils from any women whom they may encounter in the streets.

W. C. T. U. MEETING ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON LAST

The W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mr. E. C. Jones, 170 Locust street, Wednesday at 3 p. m. It was a mother's and social meeting and was well attended. The program was prepared by Mrs. M. M. Palmer and the topic was "Purity." A poem, "My opportunity," and a leaflet, "Do you love babies?" followed by another, "Consider the Lilies." All bearing on the duties and privileges of motherhood and the training of children were read by members present.
In the business session delegates to the state W. C. T. U. convention to be held in Milwaukee Sept. 21-25 were elected. Miss Lou Granger and Mrs. A. W. Horwood were elected delegates and Mrs. O. D. Bates and lists were coming in, which had an encouraging aspect. It was decided to make personal efforts to secure new names of individual members set belonging to clubs who might become interested in the work.

A report of the finance committee, given by Mrs. Percy Munger, chairman, showed that owing to the advanced cost of food supplies, not quite enough was taken in for the lunches to pay their cost. The board decided not to advance the price of these articles furnished for lunches, but to try and make up the deficit by more economical buying and in cutting down on the number of kinds of food furnished.

A report of the civics committee gave by Mrs. Percy Munger, the chairman, outlined somewhat their plans for another year. A member from each ward is to be appointed on this committee.

A report of the educational committee, especially with reference to the moving pictures, was given by the chairman, Mrs. Helms, and a general discussion of the work followed. The fly campaign of last season cost the federation the sum of $52, but it was considered at yesterday's meeting to be money well spent and the work will again be taken up next year.

interested in the work.

A report of the finance committee,
given by Mrs. Percy Munger, chair-
furnished.

man, outlined somewhat their plans
for another year. A member from
committee.

THE JANESVILLE CENTER.

Probably there has been no one institution in the city which has been more successful in filling a long felt want than the Janesville Center. Perhaps it was with the local conditions in mind that the last legislature made it possible for the city government to take over such an enterprise and assess taxes for its support. It was conceived and created through the women's efforts. It has developed most wonderfully and fully demonstrated that its influence on the community life of the city has been for the best interests of all who have come in touch with it and its work.

It takes money to make a success of any business. The local business men have been sapped to almost the last extreme by continual demands upon them for this contribution or that. It is something all the time, and the ladies who have charge of the Janesville Center realize this fact and are anxious to ask them to contribute more funds for its continuance. The actual cost, when compared to the benefits received, is but a minimum, but still that minimum totals up to several hundreds of dollars yearly.

Ask any of the young girls who make the Janesville Center their noon hour rendezvous to eat their lunch or to read, to rest or enjoy music during their rest hour and see what they think of the project. Stop some of the numerous motorists who journey through Janesville and ask them what they think of the idea and the convenience. Ask the tired mother who goes down town to shop and can find a rest room for a bit of a spare, particularly if the baby is a cross and, perhaps, hungry and home is a long way to walk. Stop the wife of the merchant of the nearby community and ask them what they think of it. If all these do not urge its continuance and appropriate its worth the Gazette is very much mistaken.

If the city would take over the project, appropriate sufficient funds to conduct it properly, place it in the hands of the ladies who have made it a success every one would be paying their share and no one would feel a bit the poorer for the few cents extra in taxes that it cost on the yearly tax list. The law has made this possible and the burden of raising the money for its management should be lifted from the shoulders of the unselfish and enterprising women who have created it and conducted it up to the present time.

Anytime until this Utopian condition awakes the heart throbs of the city government more money is needed by the Janesville Center and contributions will be thankfully received.
It is planned to have some bazaar sales and other money-raising schemes to help subsidize the depleted treasury, but a few cash contributions, perhaps some from out of town residents whose wives find it a convenience, and certainly from citizens of Janesville, will be most thankfully received.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS.

Residents of this country will either be American or they will not. Before many months the government recently launched continues to gain adher-ents. This is an outgrowth of the war and the Americans of many generations are taking the lead in inducing aliens to become citizens. Dr.
Schuyler S. Wheeler, descended from the original Dutch settlers, a strong advocate of Americanization, gives the underlying reasons for the movement.
"This country has long been regarded as the melting pot of the world," he said, "and now under pressure of the war, it is time it came to a boil and its broth was cooked. It is time that all aliens should either go back to their own countries or become Americans—there is no room in this country for aliens! For the time being the enemy aliens are dangerous citizenship, but even they should be trained and taught to be good Americans so that when they may, they can take out their papers."
"No man should dare to stand up and talk about his country any more.
If he feels allegiance to his country let him be loyal and help her fight—if he feels loyal to the United States, let him become a citizen. And if he is called upon to fight here, let him do his duty feeling that he is fighting for his own land."

Stores and cities, business both large and small, should join in Ameri-canizing their alien employees. American citizens are the best citizens—they help build up their own towns and become permanent and valuable members of the community. American workers are the best workers and are more dependable than others. I hope before the war ends to find an alien a customer or an enemy.
Americanization schools, in which aliens are instructed in the requisites for citizenship and its subsequent duties, are being opened in many cities and in a number of large businesses.

WAR AND FEET.

The importance which military service places on a good condition of the feet comes as a new idea to many people. Many young men have been rejected for poor feet, and one of the tasks of camp life is to improve foot condition.

Up to a few years ago few people gave the least thought to the care of their feet. They bought narrow-toed and high-heeled shoes having no relation to the shape of the foot, and sure to produce corns and broken arches.

Ability to walk easily and freely makes a big difference both in business success and comfort. Style designers should reflect that army service is going to popularize broad-toed shoes with millions of young men.
Fellows that formerly used always to take the patterns that were supposed to be stylish will come home with an appreciation of the comfort of sensible shoes. The foppish pointed toes will not be so popular from now on.

SHORTAGE OF DOCTORS?

Objection has been raised to the drafting of medical students, on the ground that a shortage of physicians is probable in this country, as the result of the great number who are going with the army for hospital services.

In peace times the medical profession has been overcrowded. There are never any too many first-class doctors. In most large towns and cities the practice is largely in the hands of a very few men, while the others have to struggle for a living.
The men who are serving in the war hospitals should not be running any great risks. After the war they ought to return better than ever, with a great deal of experience in operations and the advantages of a broad experience.

Thus the community should be better equipped with medical skill than ever before, even if many of the students go into the trenches.

Now the coal miners, railroad men and factory operatives demand more pay to meet the higher cost of food, and next the food producers will demand higher prices to pay for the increased wages of the coal miners, railroad men, and factory operatives.

Now if the pacifists will go down and hide in the cyclone cellar where they belong. Instead of prolonging the war by their talk, it ought to be possible to end up the trouble within a reasonable time.

According to the various conflicting accounts, it is evident that all the Austrians will soon be prisoners of the Italians, and all the Italians will be prisoners of the Austrians.

There is considerable discussion as to whether ministers should be drafted. The ministers would be glad to go, but the old ladies with the rheumatism can't spare them.

The intelligent editors of the newspapers of Germany will know what to say about President Wilson's note to Pope Benedict as soon as the Kaiser has read it.

As those 50,000 Chinese soldiers that have been offered us are provided with chopsticks, it is probably correct to say they are armed to the teeth.

Fortunately those startlingly colored things the girls are knitting for the Samities will get toned down in about three days by trench mud.

The next issue of Liberty bonds will be subscribed for with a burst of patriotic fervor, now that a four per cent interest rate is expected.

Some men are apparently going to escape the dangers of the trenches by worrying themselves to death before they get to them.

Being exhorted to practice marksmanship, the boys are gaining much skill knocking off fruit from their neighbors' trees.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

IF YOU WERE BOSS
If you were the boss and a fellow like you Came in and requested a raise, If he did his work in the way that you do Would you speak of his telling in praise?
Would the way that you tackle your task every day Indifferent to profit or loss, By another from you win an increase In pay
If you were the fellow that's boss?

If you were the chief and a vacancy came,
As vacancies frequently do, Do you think that you'd hasten to fill up the same With a youth that is very like you?
In his manner of working think you that you'd find Any trait that would cause you to gloat?
Oh, if you were boss, are you sure You're the kind Of a fellow that you would promote?

If you owned the business this morning instead Of working for people who do, Do you think you would trouble or bother your head
About a young fellow like you?
Take a look at yourself though it gives you a jar,
You may rally the next time you tire.
If you were the boss, would you say That fellow you are The kind of a fellow you'd hire?

PROGRESS IN INDIA IS HELD IN CHECK BY CASTE SYSTEM

Y. M. C. A. Worker Summarizes Conditions in Address at County Association Meeting.

Blaming the caste system of India for the ignorance, misery and lack of progress among the people, and urging the need for Christian workers to combat the evils which are rooted in centuries of tradition and superstition, O. C. Stansfield, for the last year Y. M. C. A. worker in India, summarized conditions as he found them, in an address last evening before the Rock county Y. M. C. A. His work in India was prefaced by a course at the University of Michigan and several years of Y. M. C. A. work in Michigan cities. His headquarters in India were at Bangalore and his work was under the auspices of the International Y. M. C. A. committee. At present he is visiting the Y. M. C. A. organizations raising funds to continue his work in India as he plans to return in November.

The majority of the reformers and civilizers in India operate among the lowest class which is known as the "Untouchables." This caste according to the ancient traditions of India is forbidden any intercourse with the higher classes and in some cases the very shadow of an outcast may pollute one of the higher classes. It is much easier to civilize these people since the higher classes are proud and self satisfied. Today there are four million Christians in India and they are increasing at the rate of five thousand per month.

One of the first questions in the improvement of these outcasts was to get them out of the hands of the money lenders. Previous to the coming of the Y. M. C. A. forces the rate of interest charged these poor farmers was seventy-five per cent and they were constantly in the toils of the money lenders. The Y. M. C. A. people combated this practice by establishing a co-operative loan association by pooling all the money of the country together and then lending it out at a low rate. Just recently one of the Burman Banks, which belong to the higher class, and have been laughing at these Y. M. C. A. people, came to one of these same Y. M. C. A. banks to make a loan of $66,000.

Another one of the financial measures that were inaugurated was cattle insurance organization. Cattle are the main source of wealth among the poor farmers and they value them highly. This cattle insurance has saved many a farmer from bankruptcy.

The Y. M. C. A. work has resulted in cleaner towns, establishment of churches and night schools and christianizing of the people. Some of the natives have been enlisted in the Y. M. C. A. work and are helping in the campaign for the improvement of their people and their country.

There are 315,000,000 people in India at present and the area of the country is about half that of the United States. There are really two divisions of the country as far as the people are concerned. The people in the south are far more advanced than those in the north. The interior of India is not a region of jungles and the people are not as primitive as the people in the mountain ranges principally in the Himalaya Mountains.

India has also had a part in the world war as about six times the number of regular native army are now fighting against the German Autocracy. There has been no conscription in India yet, and if there should it would be a hard matter to get the fighting age. In the beginning of the war the Indian troops were sent to France but when the campaign in Mesopotamia was started they were transferred to Asia Minor where it was thought that they would be more effective and since then they have proven themselves capable soldiers. It is a popular belief that all these Indian soldiers are small. Most of the men from the southern half of India are small but some of the men from the north resemble the giant Goliath in stature. These Indian armies have a system of dual leaders that is a corps of native leaders and a corps of British leaders although some of them lead entirely by natives. In the town of Bangalore which was Mr. Stansfield's home there were 8,000 British troops training for service in Asia Minor.

In comparing India with China Mr. Stansfield said that the Chinese have shown to be more progressive than the people of India, but the self government in both of these nations is a far future thing. India he thinks is wealthier in natural resources than China and ranks as a greater agricultural country. But it will take a long time before either of these nations will be able to govern themselves efficiently.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Janesville Spice Co.
Milwaukee St. Bridge

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Garst of 623 Milwaukee avenue have been entertaining their uncle and aunt, Major Kennard and wife, from Champaign, Ill., also Charles Garst and wife, of Chicago. Major Kennard is eighty-two years of age and is very bright and active. He was wounded in the Civil War. Mrs. Kennard was knocked down by a street car in Chicago and was taken to her way to the Northwestern depot. It was thought that she was seriously hurt, but it was found that she was not, but had a cut and some bruises on her head and body. She insisted on coming to Janesville to make her home.

Miss Nell Barry, 634 Chestnut street, entertained last night in honor of Miss Irene Sullivan, who is to be married this month. The bride was presented with many beautiful gifts.

A Doubting Father.
George Mauleville Penn was in the reform club one afternoon, says a London Journal, when he noticed that an old gentleman, a friend of his, was looking rather perturbed, so he inquired if there was anything the matter. "Well," said the old gentleman, "the fact is my son has got a play coming out tonight, and I fear it will be a ghastly failure. He can write pretty little plays when he likes, but this one he has written is a conscientious sort of a thing, and I'm sure it won't do at all. However, I suppose I must go and see it." The son's name was William S. Gilbert, and the play was "Trial by Jury."

"Mr. Strangewey," she begged earnestly, "you won't believe a word she says, will you? All my life I have been looking for a single and steadfast attachment. Of course, if Louise wants to monopolize you, I shall fall into the background, as I usually do; but if you think that I am going to accept hints and let you go out to dinner alone, you are very much mistaken. Tonight, at any rate, I insist upon coming."

"We Shall Have to Put Up With Her," She Told John With a Little Grimace.

"Will you come back and call for us here—say at seven o'clock? Mind, you are not to bother about your clothes, but to come just as you are. I can't tell you," she added under her breath, "how much I am looking forward to our evening!"

"I am staying at the Milan," John replied. "I will do myself the pleasure of calling upon you," the prince continued. "In the meantime, if you need any service that a Londoner can offer you, be sure to let me know. You will easily find my house in Grosvenor square."

"Your interest in your fellow creatures," she murmured demurely, "is wonderful, but couldn't you concentrate it just a little?"

He turned quickly around. She was smiling at him most alluringly. Unconsciously he found himself smiling back again. A wonderful light-heartedness seemed to have come to him during the last few hours.

"I suppose I am a perfect idiot," he admitted. "I cannot help it. I am used to seeing, at the most, three or four people together at a time. I can't understand these crowds. Where are they all going? Fancy every one of them having a home, every one of them struggling in some form or another toward happiness!"

"Do you know," she pronounced severely, "for a young man of your age you are much too serious? I am quite sure you could be nice if you wanted to," she continued. "How much are you in love with Louise?"

"In love with Louise?" she repeated. "All the men are. It is a perfect cult with them. And here am I, her humble companion and friend, absolutely neglected!"

"I don't believe you are neglected at all," he replied. "You are much too—"

"Fortunate Mr. Strangewey," the prince sighed. "But, forgive me, why not a more dignified form of entertainment for his first evening?"

"The poor man has no clothes," Louise explained. "He came to London quite unexpectedly."

"No clothes?" the prince repeated. "It is a long journey to take in such a fashion. A matter of urgent business, perhaps?"

Louise had risen to her feet and was busy rearranging some roses in the bowl by her side. She crushed one of the roses to pieces suddenly in her hands and shook the petals from her long, nervous fingers.

"Today," she said, "this afternoon—now—you have come to me with something in your mind, something you wish to say, something you are not sure how to say. That is, you see, what Henri Gralliot calls my intuition. Even you, who keep all your feelings under a mask, can conceal very little from me."

"My present feelings," the prince declared, "I do not wish to conceal. I would like you to know them. But as words are sometimes clumsy, I would like, if it were possible, to let you see into my heart."

She came over and seated herself by his side on the divan. She even laid her hand upon his arm.
